I can imagine the kind of day June 13, 1940 must have been: Clear, sunny, cloudless blue sky, a soft refreshing breeze permeated the ^{entire} beautiful day that Yvonne was born.

How could it have been other wise. Where else could she have gotten her charm for men, her insight into ^{their} nature + smiling personality. That cause everyone to fall in love with her.

Imagine, a day June 13, 1940, Want you

But this is what I know about June 13, 1968. It was a clear beautiful day. The sun blazed in all of its heated splendor. ~~and there was~~ occasional cool breezes ^{wave it away} swept through the heat.

Everything worked out satisfactory; the trip to Tuskegee to a ~~helpful~~ meeting with an OEO representative from Washington, the Community Action board past on our rural peoples program.

June 13, 1968 was so satisfying to me that I want to share my feeling with a young woman whom I happen to have known and loved that born on June 13. I wonder how many other June 13 were happy day. Maybe all of them.

Then I'll take June 13, as my good day and the date that you left as my bad day happy birth day
